Moscow, June 27.

YOu had formerly an account of the great disorder and confusion things were in here, of the Soldiers having entred into a Combination, and fallen upon, and Murthered the Boyars and other great Men of this Court, whom they accused of having Poysoned the Czar deceased: At present things are returned to some calmness, and the Government is put into the hands of such as applaud what the Soldiers have done; and to manifest it, they have ordered a Pyramid to be built near the Palace, on which the names of the Boyars, and others that were murthered, are to be written, and the cause, viz. For Poysoning their Prince. And that there might not new troubles arise, by a Contest between the Czar that was advanced to the Throne immediately upon the Death of his Brother, and his elder Brother, who was then put by, and whose cause the Soldiers did espouse, it has been agreed that they shall Reign joyntly, and on Sunday last was performed the ceremony of their Coronation: Their Cloaths and Regal Ornaments were both the same, and in all other things an exact equality was observed between them; and we are told that Ministers will be sent to all the Neighbouring Princes to give them notice of the advancement of these two Princes to the Throne.

Genoua, July 29. The 27th Instant arrived here the Concord, Abraham Bristow Commander, in 40 days from England; who not having touched in any part of Spain, had immediate Pratick here: besides her, we have only, of English Ships, the Charles in Port. Some of the Portugueze Ships are expected here from Villa-Franca, to take on Board a very rich Coach, and other things, for the Duke of Savoy.

Vienna, Aug. 6. We are here in some pain for the City of Caschaw, which it's feared will not be able to defend it self against the Rebels, though the Commander is a brave Man, and does all that can be expected from him The Turks we hear are likewise in motion, and care is taken on this side to secure the Passages into Silesia and Moravia, while Count Strasoldo, with the Troops under his Command, covers the Berg Towns. Count Lobcowits is returned hither from the Court of Bavaria, where he has resided as the Emperors Minister, and his Successor, Count Kaunits, will part from hence in few days.

Francfort, Aug. 9. The fourth Instant arrived here the Prince of Parma, late Governor of the Spanish Netherlands, from Cologne, and yesterday parted from hence again for Italy, intending to pass this Winter at Rome. Here passes nothing of moment; The Deputies of the Empire meet frequently, and have some time since taken a Resolution upon the last Reply of the French Ambassador; but the Deputy of Mentz, who is Director of their Assembly, has not yet published it.

Hamburg, Aug. 14. The seventh Instant the King of Denmark parted again from Copenhagen, and the ninth his Majesty arrived at Coldingen, where he was present at a Review of his Forces which are drawn together there: the report was, That they would March in a day or two, but whither was not known. But from Zell they write, That it was said there, that the Danish Troops would take their March that way, and that the Dukes of Lunenburg had therefore given Orders to their General Officers, to have a watchful eye upon the motion of the said Troops. Monsieur Chavet, Lieutenant-General of the Forces of the Duke of Zell, is made choice of to command the Troops of the Lower-Saxony, in case they take the Field.

Brussels, Aug. 14. Yesterday in the Evening the Marquis de Grana parted from hence very privately for Charleroy whither he was followed last night and this morning by the General Officers and the Secretary of State. This Morning there was a review of Count Bromay's Regiment, now in Garison here, which is ordered to March to Charleroy, and another Regiment is to come hither in its place from Flanders. His Excellency has setled the Transits (as they are called) with the States of the several Provinces, so as that the Marching of the Troops will be little or no Charge to the King or them: His Excellency intends to have them continually in motion, that the Soldiers may be the fitter for action, and not turn Burghers by staying long in a place. This Evening we are informed that his Excellency has commanded a general review to be held of all the Troops in the several Provinces, and has committed the care thereof to the Maistre de Camp General, and other General Officers.

Brussels, Aug. 18. His Excellency returned hither last Sunday in the Evening, from visiting Charleroy and Namur; and the next day Don Antonio d'Agurto, whom his Excellency had sent to take a review of the Troops in Flanders, came back to this place, and gave his Excellency an account of the posture he had found them in. Our Letters from Germany bring us nothing of news; but those from Vienna speak of the ill posture of Affairs in Hungary, where the Rebels, under the Command of Count Teckeley, attack the City of Caschaw, and will, it's feared, become Masters of it.

Hague, Aug. 18. The French Ambassador has not yet had his Audience of the States-General, which we told you in our last he had demanded upon the Birth of the young Duke of Burgundy, because of his insisting upon some particulars concerning his reception, which the States are unwilling to allow of. This State having borrowed very great Sums of money during the last War, the yearly Interest whereof is said to amount to 160 thousand Pounds Sterling, they have now resolved to pay off some of the Principal-moneys, and to raise a Fond for the doing it. The Deputies of the States that were at Amsterdam about the matter of the Convoys,
